Youthful Deprayity.

The people who live at the east end of Sixteenth street, opposite the graveyard, were startled yesterday morning by the cry of murder, proceeding evidently from a childish throat. Some of the neighbors ran to the spot whence came the cries, and ran to the spot whence came the cries, and found a little girl 8 or 9 years of age bleeding profusely from a wound in the throat. The little one gave her name as Dora McConn, and said that her sister Minnie, 11 years old, had cut her throat with some sharp instrument. The blood was washed away and two superficial cute found just under the chin. The children are the daughters of Mrs. Jane McConn, who is a noor widow, and works in the Central poor widow, and works in the Central dlass Works. The children are prover-bial in the community for their fighting propensities, and frequently raise the neighborhood by their screams.

The Chimes of Normandy. There will be a large and select party go up this evening on the St. Lawrence to np this evening on the St. Lawrence to Steubenville, to witness the first performance of "The Bells of Corneville" by the Lytic Opera Company of this city: This company is composed of our very best stingers, both ladies and gentlemen, and they have undergone several weeks of the most rigid training in order to give a satisfactory presentation of this amusing opera. Mr. C. Y. Lucas, the manager, has spared neither time, pains nor expense to make neither time, pains nor expense to make the company first class in every particular, and we feel sure that he has succeeded and we feel sure that he has sourceded admirably.

A telegram was received last night stating the St. Lawrence had passed Parkersburg at 5 o'clock last night and she would be here at 7 o'clock this morning. The fare for the round trip is only one dollar, and admission to Wheeling people 25 cents. A large number of tickets have been sold. Desirable parties can get it ickets yet. Parties of 6 can procure state oroms for Mr. O. Y. Lucas at his store on Main street.

There has been no better opportunity offered our people to visit Steubenville for many years, and we feel confident that many will embrace it. The boat will leave at 3:30 and return as soon as the performance is over.

Home for the year ending May 31st, was read by Rev. S. B. Barnitz, President of Directors, as follows:

At the close of the first eleven years of "The Children's Home of the city of Wheeling" its directors and managers have cause to look back over its past history with feelings of truest thankestying to a kind and loving Heavenly Father, who has so blessed and nutured it. Beginning with timidity and uncertainty, cradled by the kindness of a few benevolent hearts, supported for years with the greatest toil, the Home has always commanded the sympathy of our citizens of all classes and has gradually gone on increasing its good work of providing for destitute and orphan children and saving them from destruction. We now enter another year in the Home history, "with steadfast hope, and fervent prayers that steadfast hope, and fervent prayers that the structure of a future curse and tax." shother year in the Home hasory, what steadisat hope, and fevent prayers that the good already accomplished may be only the dawn of that which, by the bless-ing of God, it shall be destined in the coming years to work in behalf of or-phaned and worse than orphaned child-hood."

The remarkable health of the institution during the past years has been continued to the Home family, and speaks well for the cleanliness, wholesome food and wise sanitary measures in vogue at the Home. The entire outlay for medicines during 1880 was less than five dollars.

THE ADMISSION COMMITTEE report that sixteen children were regularly admitted during the year, and three sheltered during the bitter cold weather. Of this number nine were boys and ten were girls. Some of these were in a most deorable and heart-sickening condition but under the care and nurture of the Home they soon lost their sad countenan-ces and evil habits, and became inmates of good and upright families.

THE BUILDING COMMITTEE through its efficient chairman, has done great work during the year, having found homes for seventy three children, twelve boys and eleven girls. The chairman says: "We could have found homes for a great many more girls if we had had them. I think we have been especially them. I think we have been especially fortunate this year in securing good homes for the children. We have received cheering news from the most of them. One gentleman writes: "Mary is growing nicely, is going to school and learning very fast. She is the light of our home and very dear to us." Another says: "We would rather part with almost anything we have than our little girl." Still another says: "Our little girl is just as nice as she can be, affectionate and bright." Three others have written recently about their boys, with whom they

There is great need also to add to our present work, the proper care of aged ladies who, through the death of relatives, or through other misfortunes, are without homes.

"He could do that like he has done some other things, scratch off, or erase them. He has done such things. The Maxwell order was the first irregularity I discovered. I thought it was not straight at the time, and made a memorandum of it. Mr. Maxwell hesitated when I asked him about it, and said the $114 00 was not all for his use. I did not enquire for the estimate when I signed the check."

Mr. Carnahan said it was customary in the seasions of the Board to take any and act the nalsing of the Journal bill through Mr. Quarrier at my place of business.

Mr. Hubbard then resumed the consideration of the items of the report, and took up the overpayment to Wm. Carey, "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: To visit the father-less and widows in their siliction." I refer to these things in the hope that they may enlist attention and at no distant day bring forth fruit.

Quoting from the last report: The management of the Children's Home asts no money to carry on experiments. arguing that Deliters was not being investigated. The prosecution must be reduced to an extremity when they grasped at such straws, and when they got them there was nothing in the capture to pay for the trouble. Mr. Deliters' carelessness and loose melkods of doing business are as against him, but there is nothing to show that he has been a criminal in his transactions. Mr. Cracraft further argued that there was nothing lost to the county in the destruction of the papers, and wherein was the wrong?

Mr. Hubbard said the wrong consisted in the caseless haudling and deliberate manner in which Deliters had thrown the money around. Mr. Cracraft is generally zealous, but in this his zeal is as long as his memory is short. We do not propose doing anything that is not fair in this linguiry. To Mr. Cracraft: "You can tell the public what you please, or anybody else. You may even scare the Committee, but you can't scare me." The receipts desiroyed, as Mr. Deliters himself admitted, were the evidences of the charges, or some of the charges against him. They were certainly the evidences of his transactions.

Mr. Cracraft: it turn argued the immateriality of the receipts, which had been desiroed, and ventured the assertion that even the methodical Mr. Habbard had not kept one of his receipts.
